Foreword

The Prairie Pride is a book of memories, memories of our school, our teachers, and our classmates as they are now in 1954, and sometimes as they were in the past. It was edited by editor Darwin Ferry, Co---editor Ron Pfohl, and photographer John Gruber under the advisership of Mr. Alfred Ness, with the help of numerous unsung heroes of the Annual Staff. Morrison Studios at Milwaukee furnished pictures and Litho Productions at Madison, printed the book. Within its padded covers you will find pictures of all the 311 students in Prairie High School.

The town of Prairie du Sac borders the scenic Wisconsin River, directly below the Wisconsin Power and Light Company's Dam. The school is located in a quiet residential section of town, near beautiful Marion Park. It's an impressive red brick structure, shaped like an 'L'. Across from the main entrance is the swimming pool, operated during the summer by the school district.

Prairie High has been our home for four years. Here we worked and played, shaping our lives and ideals for the world of tomorrow.

Class Adviser

Walter Doll

The seniors wish to express their gratefulness and appreciation to you Mr. Doll, for your fine guidance and leadership during their last year at Prairie High.

History

bers of the Class of 1954 started kindergarten under the guidance of Miss Doris Lundquist. These five year olds were Bonita Hamilton, Kahn Peterson, Duane Soelle,
Art Baars, Darwin Ferry, John Gruber, Donald Hutter, James Holway, Frances Mueller, Jane and Jean Jessie, Shirley Junge, Pat
Mockler, and Joan Mowitz. Fay Ann Katchinska came all the way from Texas to join them in the middle of the year.

World War II brought changes in the community. Badger Ordinance Works opened and many of its workers were housed at a Trailer Camp on the edge of town. Seventy one pupils enrolled in the 1942 first grade, with Miss Helen Capper as teacher. George Walker, Phil Cole and Merlin Luher joined the class.

Everyone passed into second grade.

Miss Capper enjoying the group continued as second grade teacher. Karla Krueger was a newcomer.

Mrs. Pearl Meng taught the class its first arithmetic during third grade. Toby Melster was a new pupil.

Nineteen-forty-five found the class in fourth grade with Donald Schiffman and Gustave Quade added to the roll. Miss Nora Sather, beloved by two generations of Prairie students, helped the class pass from fourth to fifth grade.

Miss Vera Adams instructed fifth grade. Gus Quade left Prairie this year but returned for sixth grade.

The class members felt as big as little children can when they moved from the North Grade School down to the High School, where Miss Laura Schoephoerster took charge as sixth grade teacher.

All trudged into the seventh grade where Mr. Paul McGill was their adviser A few had a taste of being Safety Patrolmen. The Jessie twins left the class to return as juniors in high school.

Under the direction of Mrs. Clara
Kuhnau with her legendary "steel ruler", they completed eighth grade, proud in 1950, to be the first eighth grade graduates of the New Grade School.

The Eckstein twins, Eileen and Irene, joined the last year in the grades.

Even though mere freshmen, the class was happy to be in high school. Students from surrounding areas enlarged and enriched the class. After Initiation Day, they felt they really belonged in high school and began looking forward to giving the sophomores a return party in the spring. Mr.Alfred Ness was class adviser and Marion Lohr class president.

In the fall of 1951, returning as sophomores, they knew they were older and wiser. New freshmen were properly initiated. The class was under the advisership of Mr. Warren Perry. Parvin Ferry was sophomore class president.

Shining new class rings appeared after school opened in the fall of 1952. Thoughts soon turned to the Junior Prom. Named "Stairway to the Stars",it was held May 1. Class president Phil Cole as king chose Jane Kohlman his queen. Mr.and Mrs. Warren Perry served as advisers.

The senior year, with all its activities, came. King John Boehmer and Queen Shirley Junge ruled over Homecoming Festivities. The class was under the guidance of Mr. Walter Doll, Darwin Ferry again being class president. "I Remember Mama", under the direction of Mr. Ness, was presented as the class play. Harold Meeteer, elected Senior Ball King, named Pat Mockler as his queen for the "Arabian Nights", February 20. Class Night, Baccalaureate Services, Class Trip and Commencement Exercises brought the Class of '54 to the end of its days at Prairie High.

Prophecy

This is station V-PDS-TSV-C televising to you from the tenth annual reunion of the Prairie High class of 1954. We have arrived in time to see the President of the United States, Darwin Ferry, dedicating the new state capitol which has been moved to Prairie du Sac. Recording the event on film is John Gruber, President of the National Press Photographer's Association. Just arriving from Washington D.C. on Twenty-Year Man, Gus Quade's Jet Space ship, designed by Bill Evans, are Alan Albers, Secretary of Agriculture, Leon Procknow, Secretary of the Treasury (he always did have the money), and John Ring the distinguished but silent Senator from Wisconsin. They explained they were late because they "Bubbles" Lohr, who is unable to attend the reunion because running the night club, the "Greasy Spoon", takes all her time. On our right, we see Donna Accola, famed gossip columnist, interviewing George Walker, home from making his latest movie, (in 3-D Cinemascope, costarring with Marilyn Monshmoe), "Here I Am, You Lucky Women." Don Hutter and Gerald Campbell just sold their formula Gerald Campbell just sold their formula for skinning angle-worms, to that business tycoon from Merrimac Morrow. Now a word from our sponsor, "Soelle Mattresses" created by Duane Soelle and demonstrated by official demonstrator, Kahn Peterson. Diane Yanke, better known as Florence Nightie-in-gale, the II, claimed they make the most comfortable sickbeds, and Dr. Arthur Baars, the mortician's friend, agrees.

Back to our little gathering. We received word from Stockholm, Sweden, that John Boehmer has become the only athlete to excel Jim Thorpe's Olympic record. Ocops! I just tripped over our cord, Here comes Jim Ryan world-renown weight-lifter to help me up. With him is Mike Rolstad, president of the Green Bay Cherry Corporation, which has just perfected a strawberry-flavored cherry for people who don't like cherries. We turn our camera to the street where a brass band, directed by Justin Kniemeyer, is heralding the arrival of Phil Cole, coach of the University of Wisconsin football team, who has just won their fifth biannual Rose-Bowl game. With him is Gene Custaveon team manager Kerle Krueger Gustavson, team manager. Karla Krueger enjoys traveling also. She's now married and has topped the Canadian record with sextuplets. From this view we see the beautiful tenth anniversary cake, baked and decorated by the second Betty Crocker, Shirley Junge, who did so well at Stout. Shirley followed the recipe created by Gladys Petzke of the Betty Grocker Kitchen Testing Staff in Chicago. Well, if Doris Mallon didn't arrive..... My, here she is and doesn't she have a beautiful tan? I always said Africa was a warm place. Doris is a missionary for her local church at Leland.

Over-head we see a jet-plane doing crazy dips. We're told it's Jane Kohlman, rather "Miss Smile in the Jet." She has attained top honors in both fields, Smiling and Jet Piloting. Jane tells us that Bonnie Hamilton has risen to the top and stayed there. She was recently voted "The Girl We'd Most Like to Have for Dinner" by the African Society of Cannabals, For obvious reasons, she declined the award.

The director has just informed us to swing our camera over to Studio A, where Marlene Kindschi is exhibiting her International Champion Cocker Spaniel. She's receiving the golden cup now. The cup is presented to her by Jean and Jane Jessie who have established an institution for the handicapped and are teaching the inmates how to avoid hydrophobia.

Betty Zech has her own TV program, concerning the teenagers, called "How to Be Removed from Class." It's very educational and a real comedy.

Here's Barbara Dobratz who is now tickling the ivories although she never had much musical ability. Her boss finds her a very good dental assistant.

Now for a word from our sponsor, "Annie Campbell's Clinging Shampoo." It doesn't foam; it doesn't remove dandruff; it just sits and clings. Don McDonald, recently voted one of the ten best dressed men in America, says it does wonders.

Here comes bashful Ellen Matoushek, boots, ten-gallon hat and all, who just returned from Texas, She's sporting a diamond engagement kerchief clasp from her handsome Texan, who considered it practical since they'll be riding the range together. Frances Munz is changing her youngest child's diaper. She is in a daze after being voted Wisconsin's most efficient housewife. Here comes Barbara Peetz, high school secretary, with a message for us from Fran Mueller. Fran wants to know if Eddie, Jr. the oldest of her nine children is around. Here he comes with the county sheriff, Harlyn Braun, who found him on the "Eckstein's Etheral Eatery" restaurant. run by Eileen and Irene Eckstein. He was trying to meet "Lucky" Nottlestad, one of their best customers, who struck oil in Oklahoma and is giving away money.

Harold "Happy" Meeteer is selling tickets to the game which his team, Meeteer's Meteorites," will play tonight in the new Prairie recreation center. Jerry Jonas, architect who designed this twelve story two block long structure, declares it has done wonders for the youth of Prairie du Sac. Jean Keitel, county truant officer agrees.

We now turn our camera onto the street. Looking upward we see some sky paintings (anew process developed by Jim Holway) of Phyllis Schutte and Joan Mowitz. It was an advertisement for "eau de Paree" cologne. The painting was done by Merlin Luher, Jim's right-hand man. We are now on Melster Street, in the center of the business district, named after George "Toby" Melster, whose benevolence has made Harolyn Zick's pride and joy, the public library, possible. Harolyn has been able to combine marriage and the library successfully. We stop at "Evie's Cafe" where we have a cup of caffein. Howard Sprecher decided too many chemists were removing the caffein from coffee, so he removed the coffee from the caffein. He was inspired by his laboratory technician, Fay Ann Katchinska. Pat Mockler is coming across the street carrying something. My, but this is a gurprise! She's loaded down with at surprise! She's loaded down with at least fifteen books and has just informed us she is the first woman professor of Lovelogy at Harvard College. I'll bet the students don't get much out of her classes, as you all remember, Pat!

You can't help but stop and gaze in wonderment at the beautiful window display in the Fashion Store of Prairie owned and operated by Fairlene Welch. She always was trying out new styles while in Prairie high. Fairlene just told us that Darlene Pieper is a regular customer as she still takes in all the dances at the Palace, and can not be seen in the same dress twice. Edith Dahnke and Betty Zick, are co-operaters of the fabulous "Hi-Style" beauty salon. Some people certainly have done well in the local community. There seems to be no time to relax as Marvin Melville, local telegraph messenger, just rushed up with a telegram from Joe Matoushek who is in London, giving the class of 1954 his best regards. He wishes he could be here. He's right in the middle of an important experiment trying to hatch chickens with out breaking the egg shells. Joe always was trying to figure out something impossible.

There goes Don Schiffman, Manager of the Ford Corporation whizzing by in the 1965 model, He says he especially likes the roomy interior. We suppose he's headed for the city limits where Pat Pullen has established a horse ranch. She specializes in albinos and has the largest ranch in the West and Midwest. It is Prairie's only riding academy, although several others have tried but failed because of the horses' superior training.

Our time has elapsed now and your reporters, Joan Foljahn and Audrey Groth must return with their husbands to Paradise Island in the Pacific, where they operate a salvage yard and sell old battleship parts to the natives.

This is station W-PDS-TSV-C (3-dimensional-color-vision) signing off.

Acknowledgement

We hope you like our annual. We've attempted to make it an interesting pictorial account of our school life. Emphasis this year has been complete picture coverage of students in school.

It is impossible to give credit to every one who has helped in the production of the 154 Prairie Pride. There is always a group of people who rise to the challenge to carry the project through by their untiring and completely unselfish efforts.

Thanks and appreciation to this the core of the annual staff:

Jane Jessie as Katrine

Mr. Alfred Ness-Director

JENNY. I told you right in the beginning that you shouldn't trust him. But you were so sure . . . just like you always are. Mr Hyde was a gentleman. A gentleman! I bet it must have been a hundred dollars that he rooked you of. Wasn't it?

MAMA. (Returning to table.) Jenny, I cannot talk now. Maybe you don't have things to do. I have.

JENNY. (Sneeringly.) What? What have you got to do that's so important?

MAMA. (Taking up medicine bottle, fiercely.) I have to chloroform a cat! (JENNY steps back in momentary alarm, almost as though JENNY. (Putting on gloves.) Elizabeth—what a very silly name for a cat.

NELS. (Rising.) It's a very silly name for that cat. It's a Tom. MAMA. Nels, how you know?

NELS. I looked!

MAMA. If you laugh at Trina, I will tell her of the time before your wedding when your husband try to run away.

SIGRID. (Rising, intrigued.) What is that?

JENNY. Who told you that?

MAMA. I know.

SIGRID. (Intrigued-stealing around and below table.) Erik . . . tried to run away?

KATRIN. "But first and foremost, I remember Mama." (Lights begin to dim and the bouse slowly to fall. As it descends, we bear her voice continuing.) "I remember that every Saturday night Mama would sit down by the kitchen table and count out the money Papa had brought home in the little envelope. . . ." (By now, the curtain is down.)

Will

Although we are grieving, We bequest in leaving The right of next year's Senior Class Down the halls with seniority to pass.

Donna Accola with her pretty dark hair Finds it very easy to wear That dangerous color, bright red, Which she leaves to Monard Mittlesteadt.

Evelyn Accola is tall and sweet, She smiles at everyone she meets. This quality she leaves to Prairie High For someone to use by and by.

Alan Albers, Mr. Shields' pride and joy We hear is going to be a farming boy; So to you, Darrel Thurrow, he is going to will A tractor and plow so you, too the soil may till.

Art Baars with his arrow and bow All about love he does know, Patching up romances is his skill To Doug Jones this does he will.

John Boehmer, the poll vaulting lad, Knows that Terry Mulhern will sure be glad He'll no longer need his thumb To get to her fast just take a run.

Harlyn Braun at playing cards is a whiz. Ir fact, on Carl's bus, he's the best there is.
This talent he bestows upon David Litscher So that you may become even richer.

Annie Campbell worked hard in school; She followed every single rule. This being something seldom done She cannot leave it to anyone.

Gerald Campbell, who is no clown. Is trying hard to keep the fushia coloring down.

To King Marshall he wills the task, Knowing on him it won't rise so fast.

Phil Cole is a high scorer that's true So, Paul Boehmer, he wills to you The art of putting the basketball in Without bouncing it off the rim.

Edith Dahnke has freckles on her face; She seems to wear them with style and grace. She leaves to Richard Weinke not one, but two, And hopes they are becoming to you.

Barbara Dobratz likes to look
Through the library, but not at the books.
She wills Adela Bruckert this wandering way
For her to use some rainy day.

Eileen Eckstein, who is far from quiet, Leaves her ability to start a riot To a girl who hardly says "boo". Caroline Willey, she leaves this to you.

Irene Eckstein, the gum chewing lass; Her favorite place being Bookkeeping class, Wills Virginia Jessick an empty pack. You can keep it, she doesn't want it back.

Bill Evans, a mechanic is he.
He can fix it, yes-sir-ree.
In fixing things he has no rules
So, to DuWayne Block he leaves his tools.

Darwin Ferry, an all out man, Willsto brother James, an enthusiastic fan, Some energy that is sure to last So he can carry on his task.

As "Mama" in our Senior Class play Joan Foljahn has a leading lady way. To anyone who has the skill This, Joan will gladly will.

Skip Strmiska's eyes begin to close In history; soon she starts to doze. Audrey Groth leaves her way Of staying awake throughout the day.

John Gruber with a camera is fast He makes it look like such an easy task. This talent John does bequeath To the Juniors' one and only Keith.

Gene Gustavson wills that certain collection;
Knowing Lee Pilger will fill it to perfection.
This hobby being well under way
Leaves nothing further for us to say.

Bonita Hamilton wills with pride Her sunny smile and mobile glide. To Dolly Klaetsch who needs the same To win her way to fortune and fame.

Jim Holway with his scooter Really knows how to shoot her. To Lester Procknow, the motorcycle man, Jim leaves his air cooler fan.

Donald Hutter isn't shy
Especially when he's near Lodi.
To Lois Eckstein, a Junior gay,
He wills the roads out that way.

Jane and Jean Jessie leave their quiet way to Ron and Don Lang, and say Don't you know, "crime doesn't pay."

Jerry Jonas, the driver of the souped-up hot rod,
Piles the kids in like peas in a pod.
I'm sure Carl Tammi will be pleased to be seen
Being the recipient of this taxi and limousine.

Home Economics is Shirley Junge's line; In that field she does extra fine. She wills to Peggy Menthorn her ability here, and hopes she will use it next year.

Marlene Kindschi, in the kitchen is handy With her recipe file she does dandy. She leaves this freshly baked wafer To that bashful girl Laurene Schaefer.

Jean Keitel plans on being a farmer's wife So she leaves her luck to Junice Pieper Who may like that life.

Justin Kneimeyer can really drum;
He makes it look like a lot of fun
To terry Mulcahy he leaves his rhythum.
He decided not to take it with him.

Jane Kohlman, our D.A.R. winner, In her eyes wears a glimmer. Hary Anderson, she leaves this award to you, Hoping you will be worthy of it, too.

Don McDonald and Eugene Morrow Leave their bus rides of tomorrow To and from the Merrimac City. Now don't you think that was witty Harold Meeteer, the ladies'friend, Leaves an unused black book for Tom Smith to mend.

George Melster leaves his nickname "Toby" with you, And if you like that name George you can have that too.

Marvin Milleville, the Black Hawk speeddemon at the wheel, Around the corners he likes to peel. John Anderson, he leaves to you his truck If you get it started, don't get stuck.

Frances Mueller has considered she'd like To will Moose Accola for that cold, cold night
Her electric blanket to keep him warm
In her ninety year heap, all battered and worn.

Frances Munz likes to square dance; Around the floor she does prance. To anyone interested in the same She wills some energy for the game.

Madge LaDue's mischievious ways
Keeps everyone in a daze.
Arvin Nottlestad wills his nickname
"Lucky"
and hopes everything will be just ducky.

Barbara Peetz, newspaper woman of '54, Wills Carol Kruse the active chore Of getting the news in on time In order to beat the Wednesday deadline.

Kahn Peterson's moustache makes him look bold and brave; So he wills it to Bernie Maroney who still doesn't shave.

Gladys Petzke liked to catch Duane Soelle's eye; In Bookkeeping class she would try and try. Now that she has given up. Alice Pierce, she is letting you try your luck.

A girl in our class named Darlene Pieper At night wasn't much of a sleeper; She leaves to Ron Pfohl her mighty roller skating So the next day at dozing he will get a high rating.

With Gene Olson, Karla Krueger will share A lock of her naturally curly hair. All the girls will gather round When curlyheaded Gene comes to town.

Her hilarious laugh, Marion Lohr does will To Wilmer Sprecher who sits so still; Throughout the night, throughout the day He may as well with laugh be gay.

Merlin Luher, the lanky lad, Says being tall isn't so badl With Shirley Russell he is willing to share Part of the height and crew-cut hair.

Here is a girl that is rather keen

She has a dual personality, her name is Doris Jean Carol Post, she is leaving to you the courage to try To make the taachers believe you are shy. Ellen Matoushek, who is quiet and shy, Wills this characteristic to Clayton Ganser, the talkative guy.

Joe Matoushek always studied his lesson; He never had to do any guessing. Though Marlene Kuhnau also studies hard He leaves this "A" to use if you're caught off guard.

Leaving women alone is Leon Procknow's aim He hopes Nonte Cook will do the same. He wills his hampshire hogs, as they are something to be trusted, They'al bring you lots of money, you'll never be "busted."

Patsy Pullen has the habit Of raising small angora rabbits. To Leon Petzie she leaves this skill And says there's money in the racket still.

Gus Quade, with teachers has a certain touch;
And realizes Dan Googins needs it much.
To him he wills his hypnotic pill.
Hoping it will cure him of all his ills.

John Ring leaves his Bookkeeping workbook to anyone Who thinks they'll need it to get theirs done. "Mike" Rolstad is ready with a wise remark He leaves to Ann Maas this likeable spark.

Jim Ryan's quite the guy He isn't bashful, he isn't shy. He wills to Marilyn Purdy his way so keen While in his eyes we see a familiar gleem.

Don Shiffman has a favorite parking spot; He just about willed it, but he forgot that Marlene is a Junior small So he isn't willing it after all.

Duane Soelle, with style and grace, Wills the innocent look upon his face to Shirley Hallon who needs it more To hide her devilish thoughts proofe.

Howard Sprecher is rather shy. Still he is a typical guy. He wills Lyle Klienert this one thing. His saxophone, cause he doesn't sing.

George Walker is our handsome lad;
And Junior boys, don't feel bad
That he is keeping his good looks,
Cause he needs them for the ladies in his books.
Priscilla Weber has some pleasant ways;
She finds with teachers it really pays.
To Ed Skendahl she wills these

"Don't try to agravate them-but try to please."

Fairaline Welsch with her roving eyes
Has a abbit of loving several guys.
To Sandra Jellum this advice she is leaving
Love them and leave them, there'll be no greiving.

Betty Zech liked to take noon hour walks With her friends, and they have little talks.
She wills to Wadena Lipke a bike When she goes for that certain hike.

Harolyn Zick is a brain in history
She studies so there's no real mystery.
She's willing her so called studious ways
To Lois Eckstein who sits in a daze.

Diane, Pat and Fay, who are full of wit, Leave this will and hope everything will fit; That each member of the class of '54 alive Gave generously to the class of fifty-five.
